

A micrograph of a biological specimen, likely a cross-section of a plant stem or root, showing two large, elongated, rectangular structures (left_pad and right_pad) separated by a narrow gap. The structures are filled with a dense, granular material. The background is a light gray grid. A scale bar is located in the bottom left corner.

left_pad

right_pad

100 μm